Unveiling the Treasures of Moscow

Moscow boasts an impressive array of landmarks that bear testimony to its rich past. The iconic Red Square, with the majestic Kremlin, stands as a symbol of Russia's grandeur. The St. Basil's Cathedral, with its vibrant onion-shaped domes, is a sight that will leave you mesmerized. As you stroll through the streets of Moscow, immerse yourself in the stories of the tsars at the Grand Kremlin Palace and marvel at the artistry showcased in the State Tretyakov Gallery.

A Breathtaking Voyage Along the Volga River

Departing from Moscow, the cruise ship sets sail down the mighty Volga River. As you relax on the deck, soak in the picturesque landscapes that pass by. The tranquil waters mirror the vibrant Russian countryside, dotted with quaint villages and rolling hills. As the sun sets, creating a mesmerizing ambiance, indulge in a delicious Russian dinner on board, savoring the flavors of the region.

Emerging Charm of Uglich and Yaroslavl

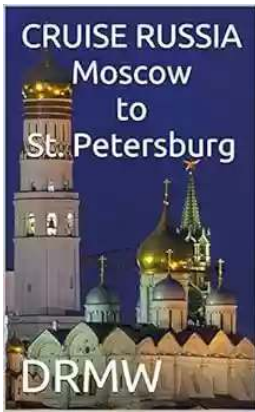

The cruise takes you to the enchanting towns of Uglich and Yaroslavl, each offering a glimpse into Russia's past. Uglich, with its rich history and medieval architecture, will transport you to a different era. Visit the Church of St. Dmitry on the Blood, built on the site where Ivan the Terrible's son was mysteriously killed. In Yaroslavl, admire the beautifully preserved Church of Elijah the Prophet and explore the local markets overflowing with traditional Russian crafts.

St Petersburg: The Venice of the North

As the cruise reaches its final destination, you arrive in St Petersburg, often referred to as the Venice of the North. This jewel of a city boasts opulent palaces, romantic canals, and magnificent cathedrals. Marvel at the grandeur of the Peterhof Palace, known for its stunning gardens and intricate fountains. Discover the artistic treasures housed in the renowned Hermitage Museum, home to works by renowned masters such as Da Vinci, Rembrandt, and Van Gogh. This book describes a cruise between Moscow and St. Petersburg along the Volga and other waterways (The Volga-Baltic Waterway river and canal system). Usually the Russian cruise boats are shared by several travel cruise companies and are multinational. However, on day trips away from the cruise boat the individual travel companies will have their own transport and Russian guides. The following places are described and illustrated with numerous photographs: Moscow, Uglich, Yaroslavl, Goritsy, Kizhi, Mandrogi, and St Petersburg. Information is given about the waterway system between Moscow and St. Petersburg. All major tourist sights are described along with some history. It is out of the scope of this guide book to provide a detailed history and where necessary an appropriate guide book may wish to be consulted for such detailed information.

The cruise follows parts of the tourist circuit “The Golden Ring”. The places visited have many palaces, colourful churches and museums and provide an outstanding experience of Russia.

The cruise boats traverse rivers, canals and large reservoirs and lakes such as:
The Moscow Canal, The Moscow River, Uglich reservoir, Rybinsk Reservoir, Sheksna River

White Lake (Lake Beloye), Kovzna River, Volga-Baltic Canal, Lake Onega, Svir River,
Lake Ladoga, Neva River.

The very large reservoirs may be sea like with some motion, although not very severe, that could cause sea sickness if one is sensitive to such motion, an appropriate travel sickness medication could be taken.

The cruise starts in Moscow and ends in St. Petersburg. In some areas along the waterway system visits are made to places that have been specifically developed to show the history of rural Russia.

Detailed information is given with regard to applying for and obtaining the necessary visa document for a visit to Russia. This however is a guide only and complete up to date information should be obtained from the website for the visa application. Note that the information at the time of publication applies specifically to persons born in and living in the UK. For travellers born outside the UK and / or living outside the UK it is advised that the website for the visa application must be consulted. A link is given in the book to the website.
