Unveiling the Majesty of the Northern Lights

The Northern Lights, scientifically known as aurora borealis, refer to the colorful and mesmerizing light display that graces the night sky in the polar regions. These breathtaking occurrences, created by the interaction of particles from the sun with the Earth's magnetic field, create an awe-inspiring symphony of colors and shapes that dance across the heavens.

But what sets the work of Michael Northen apart from others is his ability to capture these fleeting moments of auroral magic with unparalleled precision. His photographs don't simply depict the Northern Lights; rather, they immerse viewers in the ethereal beauty, invoking an emotional connection that few other photographers can achieve.

Through his lens, Northen has managed to encapsulate the very essence of the Northern Lights. Whether it's a sweeping panorama of vibrant ribbons of light dancing above a snow-covered forest or a close-up shot revealing intricate details of the aurora, Northen's photography captivates our imagination and transports us to a world of wonder.

The Secrets Unveiled

One might wonder how Northen manages to capture these elusive spectacles so vibrantly. The answer lies in his unwavering dedication and meticulous planning. Michael Northen spends countless hours researching the ideal locations, meticulously studying weather patterns, and immersing himself in the unique culture of each area he wishes to photograph.

It is this commitment that allows Northen to position himself in the heart of the auroral action, capturing the perfect alignment and symphony of colors. Whether it's hidden valleys in Scandinavia or remote Alaskan landscapes, Northen's quest for the perfect shot knows no bounds.

Furthermore, Northen's profound knowledge of his equipment and post-processing techniques ensures that his photographs accurately represent what he experienced firsthand. His expertise in manipulating light, contrast, and other elements of photography brings out the essence of the Northern Lights, allowing his audience to witness their transcendental beauty as if they were standing right beside him.

Immersed in the Dance of Lights

When viewing Northen's photographs, one cannot help but be transported into a mystical realm, where the icy air whispers secrets of the universe and the lights paint a tableau of cosmic wonder. It is through Northen's lenses that we see our world transformed into a dreamscape, where reality melds seamlessly with the ethereal.

As we join Michael Northen on his captivating expedition through the Northern Lights, we become witnesses to nature's ethereal dance. The vivid colors, the undulating patterns, and the overall enchanting aura of the Northern Lights are unveiled before us like a well-guarded secret.

Michael Northen's passion and commitment to his craft capture the very essence of the Northern Lights, making it accessible to all who view his photographs. His journey through the ethereal world of the aurora borealis enthralls and inspires, leaving us awestruck by the beauty that lies just beyond the reach of our everyday lives.

It is through the lens of Michael Northen that we can experience the captivating allure of the Northern Lights, igniting a sense of wonder and appreciation for the natural treasures that surround us.

Many books have been written by famous personalities in the theatre about their lives and work. However this is probably one of the first memoirs by someone who has spent his entire career behind scenes, and not in front of the footlights. As a lighting designer and as consultant to designers and directors, Michael Northen worked through an exciting period of fifty years of theatrical history from the late nineteen thirties in theatres in the UK and abroad, and on productions ranging from Shakespeare, opera and ballet to straight plays, pantomimes and cabaret.

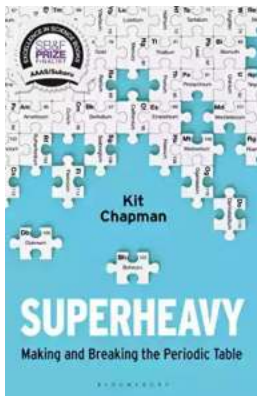

This is not a complicated technical text book, but is intended to give an insight into some of the 300 productions in which he had been involved and some of the directors, the designers and backstage staff he have worked with, viewed from a new angle.
