From outlaws and prostitutes, card sharks, and con artists, to heroines and peacekeepers, this is the biggest bevy of badass beauties who ever laced up a corset or pulled on a pair of boots. Some came from a hardscrabble upbringing, some from wealth, and even nobility. Yet, despite unbelievable hardships, dangers, and life-threatening situations, these fearless ladies overcame obstacles that would have defeated any man.

Covering nearly three hundred years of American History, this book tells the fascinating but true stories of women from all walks of life. Like a frontier woman, who, after being captured, managed to free herself and, with the help of two other captives, killed and scalped ten Indians. Or Madame Moustache, a card shark, who before her beauty faded toured the West separating men from their money with her French accent and pretty smile. A former slave who defied convention and became a legend, and a young beauty who pulled off one of the most famous cons jobs of the Old West.

These fearless frontier women all had one thing in common: They lived their lives on their terms. Some paid dearly for their decisions, and some lived to a ripe old age. But all of these real-life frontier damsels have life lessons that we can learn from.
