

Never Too Old For Adventure: Two Octogenarians Abroad

Never Too Old for Adventure Two Octogenarians Abroad

Correspondence from a year of home exchanges with couples in Austria, Germany, France and Poland

Sigrid Scholtz Novak and Richey Novak

Life is a journey, and for some, that journey never ends. Two fearless octogenarians, John and Mary, have proven that age is just a number when it comes to embarking on exciting adventures. With a shared passion for exploration and a curiosity that knows no bounds, they recently set off on an unforgettable trip abroad, challenging societal norms and redefining what it means to age gracefully.

Their destination? The exquisite land of Greece, home to ancient wonders, breathtaking landscapes, and a rich cultural heritage. This Mediterranean jewel offered the perfect backdrop for their bold escapade, where they would immerse themselves in new experiences and create memories that would endure for a lifetime.

Upon arrival, John and Mary wasted no time in delving into the heart of Greek culture. They visited historic sites such as the iconic Acropolis in Athens, marveled at the ancient ruins of Delphi, and explored the charming streets of Santorini. Each step they took was a testament to their indomitable spirit and unwavering determination to embrace their sense of adventure.

But it wasn't just the tourist hotspots that beckoned them. John and Mary were keen to connect with the local community and learn about their way of life. They spent evenings sharing stories with friendly Greek villagers, relishing traditional cuisine, and joining in joyful festivities. The locals were captivated by their enthusiasm and inspired by their zest for life, proving that age truly is no barrier to forging new friendships.

The couple's adventurous spirit also led them off the beaten path, venturing into undiscovered territories that few tourists dare to explore. They went on breathtaking hiking trails, embracing nature's splendor, and stumbled upon hidden gems tucked away in remote Greek islands.

In their journey across Greece, John and Mary faced physical challenges, but their resilience knew no bounds. Climbing steep cliffs, diving into the azure

Aegean Sea, and navigating through narrow winding streets were just a few of the obstacles they fearlessly conquered. Their accomplishments echoed loudly, sending a powerful message to people of all ages that dreams can be realized at any stage of life.

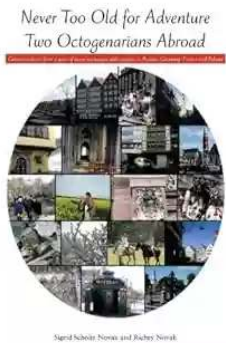

As their journey neared its end, John and Mary couldn't help but reflect on the incredible experiences they had shared. Their adventure had enriched their lives in immeasurable ways, proving that the truest measure of happiness lies not in material possessions but in the memories and connections we create.

Today, John and Mary continue to inspire others with their remarkable story. They have become symbols of resilience, breaking stereotypes and encouraging people of all ages to pursue their dreams relentlessly. They highlight that the only limitations we face in life are the ones we impose upon ourselves.

So, here's to John and Mary, who prove that it's never too late to embark on an adventure and live life to the fullest. Their story reminds us that age is merely a number and that the world remains an enchanting place awaiting exploration, regardless of our age. Let their journey serve as a reminder to embrace our inner wanderlust and live the life we've always dreamed of.

This book is an excursion into the thoughts and experiences of two enterprising octogenarians: a German wife and her Texas husband. They return to Europe for one year of home exchanges with various partners in several cities and countries: Austria, France, Germany, and Poland. The correspondences are presented chronologically, paired with cultural insights, memories of the cities and villages as they were decades ago, and the new adventures they embark on with people they encounter and relatives they visit along the way. We promised our U.S. family we would write regular reports of our whereabouts and keep them informed of our activities abroad. We kept our promise over the months, and this notebook is the collection of letters and pictures from our stay overseas. The trip took place from autumn 2007 through autumn 2008.
