This three-day conference promises to be a melting pot of innovative ideas, groundbreaking research, and passionate discussions among leading scholars, researchers, and practitioners in the field of rule-based reasoning and machine learning.

Rule-Based Reasoning and Machine Learning: A Dynamic Duo

The Rule-Based Reasoning and Machine Learning (Rulemlrr) conference series has been at the forefront of exploring the potential synergies between rule-based reasoning and machine learning techniques. By combining these two powerful paradigms, Rulemlrr aims to foster advancements in the fields of artificial intelligence, knowledge representation, and decision-making systems.

As technology continues to advance at an astonishing pace, the need for robust, explainable, and transparent decision-making systems becomes increasingly urgent. Rule-based reasoning, with its ability to represent knowledge in the form of logical rules, provides a framework for interpretable and explainable decision-making. On the other hand, machine learning techniques, with their ability to extract patterns and make predictions from data, offer immense potential for automating complex tasks and improving the efficiency of decision-making systems.
