The story of this title is closely linked to the history of the Canary Islands, especially the island on which the image appeared, Tenerife.

There is no agreement on the exact year of the appearance, but the prevailing opinion is that it appeared at the mouth of the Chimisay canyon in the Canarian municipality of Güímar, 95 years before the conquest of Tenerife, or between the year 1392 and the year 1401.

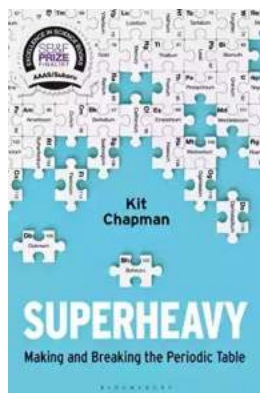

This is therefore the first Marian apparition that occurred in the Canaries.

Fray Alonso de Espinosa told the story in 1594.
