‘Mirror Daughter’ is an historical ‘time-slip’ book for readers in the 9-12 age-group.

Izzie, a 12-year-old girl living in Cambridge, bullied at school and brought up by her aunt and uncle, is drawn into a world of darkness and danger when she finds a bronze, Iron Age mirror on display in the Glenlaurie museum.

Her life interweaves with the Iron Age tribal life of Elin and Grata, as they seek to outwit the menace of the Roman auxiliary cavalryman, Catorix and the greedy Roman soldier, Brigio.

Izzie’s search for the stolen Mirror takes her and her friend, Grata, over river and through forest until, at last their encounter with Catorix puts them in grave peril. It is Izzie, whose life intertwines with the dangers they are facing, who assists them in defeating the dark and menacing Catorix and in restoring the precious Mirror to the tribe of the Lake village.

Izzie learns to deal with the shadows of these different lives lived so long ago, north of Hadrian’s Wall, and grows in courage as she tries to make sense of it all.
