

The Seven Ingredients Of Relationship Ready Person

Are you ready to take your relationship game to the next level? Becoming a relationship ready person involves developing several key qualities that will enhance your ability to connect and form deep, meaningful bonds with others. In this article, we will explore seven ingredients that contribute to being relationship ready.

Ingredient 1: Self-Awareness

Self-awareness is the foundation of any healthy relationship. It involves being in touch with your own emotions, values, and beliefs, as well as understanding your own strengths, weaknesses, and patterns of behavior. By developing self-awareness, you can more effectively communicate your needs and desires, while also being mindful of the needs of your partner.

Ingredient 2: Emotional Intelligence

Emotional intelligence is the ability to recognize, understand, and manage both your own emotions and the emotions of others. This skill is important in navigating the ups and downs of a relationship. By being emotionally intelligent, you can empathize with your partner's experiences, communicate effectively, and resolve conflicts in a healthy and respectful manner.

Ingredient 3: Willingness to Grow

A relationship ready person is someone who is open to growth and change. They understand that personal development is an ongoing process and are willing to put in the effort to continually improve themselves. This mindset allows for personal growth within the relationship and creates an environment of learning and self-improvement.

Ingredient 4: Effective Communication

Communication is vital in any relationship. Relationship ready individuals have strong communication skills that enable them to express their thoughts, feelings, and needs clearly and honestly. They actively listen to their partner and seek to understand their perspectives. Effective communication fosters trust, intimacy, and connection.

Ingredient 5: Empathy and Compassion

Empathy and compassion are crucial qualities for a relationship ready person. They involve understanding and sharing the feelings of your partner and showing kindness and support during difficult times. When you can empathize with your partner's emotions, it deepens your bond and strengthens your connection.

Ingredient 6: Trustworthiness

Trust is the foundation of any successful relationship. Relationship ready individuals are trustworthy and dependable. They maintain their commitments, are honest in their interactions, and keep their partner's secrets. By establishing trust, you create a safe space for vulnerability and intimacy.

Ingredient 7: Emotional Availability

Emotional availability refers to the ability to be present and connected emotionally in a relationship. Relationship ready individuals are open and receptive to their partner's emotions. They engage in active listening, validate their partner's feelings, and provide support when needed. By being emotionally available, you foster a deep emotional connection with your partner.

By cultivating these seven ingredients within yourself, you can become a relationship ready person. Developing self-awareness, emotional intelligence, a willingness to grow, effective communication, empathy and compassion, trustworthiness, and emotional availability will empower you to form and maintain healthy and fulfilling relationships. Remember, becoming relationship ready is an ongoing journey that requires dedication, self-reflection, and a genuine desire to connect with others.

A former friend once said to me, “I could have had him.” She was talking about the man I was in love with, who is now my husband. This person viewed ‘getting’ a relationship as if it were a fishing expedition. What she missed was that finding a true love relationship has nothing to do with fishing and a lot to do with becoming the person someone else wants to be with.

There are three big questions to ask and answer as we proceed down our relationship-ready path: What needs to be developed in ourselves? Who have I picked or who do I usually pick and why? And if you are already in a relationship, what do we need to learn in order to make our relationship work?

Creating a true love relationship with another asks us to develop specific qualities in ourselves. These seven qualities or ingredients are the key to “making a magic cake” with our beloved. Making this magic relationship also requires that we trust we can manifest this person – a person who we love, a person who adores us and who wants to build a relationship with us.

In this book, you will read stories about other couples and their struggles and some of my stories as well. You will learn what makes a relationship work, and what does not. And you will be guided to develop these ingredients, becoming that person who can manifest the relationship of their dreams.
