Our expedition begins in the mystical lands of Peru, where Gary Robinson takes us through the mesmerizing ruins of Machu Picchu. This ancient city, nestled high in the Andes Mountains, was once a flourishing epicenter of the Inca Empire, mysteriously abandoned and lost to the world for centuries. Uncover the secrets of this UNESCO World Heritage Site as we venture through its sacred temples, terraces, and stone structures.

As we explore the terraced fields carved into mountain slopes and navigate through the intricate stone paths, you will feel the energy of the ancient civilization that thrived here. Delve into the architectural marvels, designed with such precision and ingenuity that they continue to awe and inspire visitors from around the world to this day. Join Gary Robinson in deciphering the symbols, histories, and stories etched into the city's very foundations.

The Enigmatic Pyramids of Giza

Our adventure then leads us to the iconic Pyramids of Giza, standing tall against the backdrop of the Egyptian desert. Gary Robinson shares his expertise on the mysteries surrounding these architectural marvels and the people who built them. Marvel at the Great Pyramid, the last Egyptian wonder of the Ancient World, as you stand in awe of its grandeur and magnitude.

The pyramids have been a subject of fascination for centuries, and their enigmatic construction continues to baffle modern architects and historians. Gary Robinson invites you to delve into the theories and controversies surrounding these age-old structures, challenging conventional wisdom and inviting us to question our understanding of ancient civilizations.

Rediscovering the Lost City of Petra

Prepare to be captivated as Gary Robinson leads us through the hidden wonders of Petra, an ancient city carved into rose-red cliffs in present-day Jordan. This UNESCO World Heritage Site takes us on a journey through time, reuniting us with the ancient Nabateans civilization of the 6th century BC.

As we walk through the narrow Siq, the breathtaking chasm that leads to Petra's magnificent Treasury, we are transported back to an era of opulence and grandeur. Admire the intricate facades, majestic tombs, and sacred temples, all masterfully carved into the sandstone cliffs. Gary Robinson's insights shed light on the cultural and historical significance of this once-thriving trading hub.

The Sacred Temples of Angkor Wat

Our expedition concludes in the mystical jungles of Cambodia as we unravel the mystique surrounding the temples of Angkor Wat. Gary Robinson will take us on a spiritual journey, where we discover the profound connection between spirituality and architecture.

The Angkor Wat complex is the largest religious monument in the world, with its sprawling temples and intricate bas-reliefs reflecting the artistic brilliance of the Khmer Empire. Traverse the temple grounds at sunrise, witness the sun illuminating the intricate sculptures, and experience a moment of sheer awe. Gary Robinson's insights into the symbolism and beliefs behind these ancient structures paint a vivid picture of the empire that flourished here.

This historical novel tells the story of a twelve-year-old Chumash boy and his family who become captives in a California Spanish mission sometime more than 200 years ago. This is historical fiction based entirely on historical fact that reveals the devastating impact the missions had on California Native peoples. Written for fourth, fifth and sixth graders, the story ends on a hopeful note as a small group of Native children are able to escape their captors and begin a journey to join other Native escapees in a remote mountain village. As mandated by the California Department of Education, every 4th grader is taught the “Mission Unit,” which perpetuates the “idyllic mission myth” that glorifies the priests, denigrates California Indians and fails to mention that Indians were actually treated as slaves held captive by a Spanish colonial institution. The manuscript has been reviewed and approved by the Director of the Santa Ynez Chumash Culture Department and a member of the California American Indian Education Oversight Committee. It has the endorsement of a fourth grade teacher in California who has shared the story with her class and a local librarian who is excited about sharing the story with elementary age children through the library. It has also been endorsed by the local library branch manager and a former professor of Anthropology within the University of California system.
